

Biology and Conservation of Alligator Snapping Turtles (Macrochelys): General Acknowledgments

We thank those who generously offered photos for potential use on the cover and for the dedication, a small but important one of our tasks. We appreciate all who assisted in the quest for photos and information about those photos: Ben Atkinson, Charles Battaglia, Greg Brashear, Carl Franklin, Christopher Gillette, Eric Goode, Bill Hawthorne, Michael Knoerr, Maximilian Maurer, Eric Munscher, Sibille Pritchard, and Mike Redmer.

We are extremely grateful for the confidence placed in us by donors who provided funds to help make this special issue a reality. We thank Anders Rhodin of the Chelonian Research Foundation; Russ Mittermeier and Ella Outlaw of re:wild; Andrew Walde and Jordan Gray of the Turtle Survival Alliance; Eric Munscher and Jon Kehmeier of SWCA Environmental Consultants; Charles Paxton and the Louisiana Master Naturalists – Northeast; and the Lillian L. and Fred A. Marx Endowed Professorship in Biology, University of Louisiana Monroe. We also thank our home institutions for bearing with us for the duration of this project: School of Sciences, University of Louisiana Monroe; Illinois Natural History Survey, Prairie Research Institute, University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign; and Department of Natural Sciences, Santa Fe College, Gainesville, FL.

The personnel associated with the Eagle Hill Institute who produce the Southeastern Naturalist have been tremendously helpful and gracious with their time from conception to fruition, including Keith Goldfarb, Joerg-Henner Lotze, Karl E. Miller, Chase Uy, and Gideon Wallace. We extend a huge thank you to all the Manuscript Editors who guided submissions through the review process: Matthew Aresco, Mark Bailey, Sean Doody, Kevin Enge, Brad Glorioso, Cathryn Greenberg, Daniel Greene, Craig Guyer, Steven Johnson, Rebecca Kimball, Kenneth Krysko, Peter Lindeman, Kira McEntire, Peter Meylan, Eric Munscher, Carl Qualls, John Rowe, Scott Rush, David Steen, Tracey Tuberville, and Thane Wibbels. They harnessed the power of scores of peer reviewers in evaluation and enhancement of the work you see in this special issue.
